

BENCH CARD: CHILD WELFARE / JUVENILE JUSTICE CONFERENCING

Neb. Rev. Stat. §43-247.03 provides that in any juvenile case, the court may provide the parties with the opportunity to address issues involving the child's care and placement, services to the family, and other concerns through restorative justice practices, including conferencing, mediation, and facilitation.

The Office of Dispute Resolution (ODR) shall be responsible for funding and management of such services provided by approved centers. The ODR has prepared this Bench Card as a reference guide when referring child welfare and juvenile justice facilitated conferencing.

PROCEDURE

- » When the Court determines, upon its own motion, or upon motion of a party, that mediation or facilitation is warranted, it will include such language in its written order.
- » The order directs the parties to contact the ODR-approved mediation center to provide either a child welfare conference or a juvenile justice conference.

Sample Court Order Language

The Court finds that the above referenced case shall be referred for a Child Welfare (CWC) or Juvenile Justice (JJC) Conference (circle one). The mediation center will conduct an assessment to determine the optimum mediation or facilitation to use to address the issues specified. At the conclusion of the conference, the mediation center will issue a Mediation Center Court Transmittal Report along with a copy of any summary/agreement to the Court.

(ODR-approved mediation center).

Following the issuance of the order, the bailiff or court staff sends/faxes/scans a copy of that order to the mediation center serving the county.

- » When coding the order into JUSTICE, court staff uses either the "CWC" or "JJC" code.
- » At the conclusion of the conference, the mediation center transmits a "Mediation Center Court Transmittal Report" along with a copy of the conference summary/mediated agreement to the court. (See reverse for sample Transmittal Report.)
- » Court staff then enters into JUSTICE the specific type of conference conducted, as noted on the Transmittal Report.
