review. There is a question as to whether the district court's order of February 24, 2026, dismissing the cause "without prejudice" is a final, appealable order. See Deines v. Essex Corp., 293 Neb. 577, 879 N.W.2d 30 (2016) (holding that such an order does not constitute a "judgment" under Neb. Rev. Stat. 25-1301 (Cum. Supp. 2024) because it does not finally determine rights of parties). There must be a rendition of judgment set forth in a single, signed written document stating all of the relief granted or denied in the action, as required by § 25-1301(2). The parties are instructed to include a discussion of these jurisdiction issues in their briefs filed in this matter.

Misc Submission to Court - Jurisdiction

Appeal dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. See Neb. Ct. R. App. P. § 2-107(A)(1). Appellant has filed his appeal from the county court's order of April 17, 2026, which made a number of findings as to the various claims of the parties but did not actually dismiss them. As set forth by the Nebraska Supreme Court: We have repeatedly said that a final, appealable judgment is one that disposes of the case by dismissing it either before hearing is had upon the merits or after trial by rendition of judgment for the plaintiff or defendant.... It is only when the court enters an order of dismissal that the proceedings brought before the court by one party against another and filed under a particular case number come to an end. Otherwise, the action remains pending before the court. Only by plainly granting or denying all of the relief sought in the action does the order conclude all the rights of the parties so that further proceedings cannot affect them. Only then does the court, in a single written document, determine the rights and liabilities of the parties to the fullest extent possible. D&M Roofing & Siding v. Distribution, Inc., 316 Neb. 952, 971-72, 7 N.W.3d 868, 883 (2024) (emphasis in original).
